AUDIT FINDS POOL ACCOUNTS ALL O. K.

Wisconsin Department of Markets Audits Tobacco Pool Accounts.

Accounts of the Northern Wisconsin Co-operative Tobacco pool have been audited under the supervision of the Wisconsin department of markets and found correct. The report made to Jens Davidson, president of the pool, by Mr. Nordman follows:

"After careful examination of your records, our accountant informs me that the business affairs of the pool are in first-class condition. This fact, it seems to me, should serve to give your membership added confidence in the management of the pool.

"As matters now stand, the only chance to putting this pool over 100 per cent is the false reports regarding pool operations that are being constantly circulated among the pool members. These reports should not be believed and effect of the powers would take the trouble of getting the facts before they start criticizing the action of pool officers.

"The truth is, however, that altogether too many members are ready to give credence to false rumors and use these as a basis for finding fault, when such members should be busy with the facts from the department of their organization or from the department of markets at Madison.

"Despite the fact that the pool is now managed on sound business principles, it cannot become a complete success until the membership practically unanimously regard the organization as their pool and until this membership learns to use facts and not mere rumors as a basis for what-ever criticism they make of pool operations."

Increase in Price

Figures received from the United States department of agriculture disclose that 41,000 Wisconsin acres were planted to tobacco last year, an increase of 4,000, and that the production per acre was 1,093 pounds, compared with 1,140 lbs. for 1922. The average price paid for this crop was 23.2 cents per pound, an increase of 3.2 cents over the average for 1922.

It was also stated that Wisconsin farmers for a smaller crop received nearly $1,000,000 more for their tobacco than was paid to Pennsylvania growers. Connecticut, alone, of the states specializing in cigar tobacco, had a larger cash return than Wisconsin. Under similar conditions, farmers received $11,157,000 for the 45,052,000 pounds of cigar tobacco produced last year, an increase of $2,037,000.

Open Warehouses

The board of directors of the Wisconsin tobacco pool has decided to open immediately its warehouses at Virgona and Coon Valley.

It was announced that advances to be paid on packed tobacco will be approximately the same as paid on crops sold in the bundle. Northern nondescript No. 1 will be offered for sale at 16 cents per pound and northern nondescript No. 2 for 14 cents. Southern nondescript No. 1 will be sold for 15 cents and No. 2 at 13 cents.

A considerable number of pool contracts for the pool crop from every section of the state have been brought in by members of the board, they reported, adding that a large number of nonpool crops remain unsold and that many of the nonpool growers had been docked from 25 to 70 per cent.

Sentiment among growers, evidenced at the recent Stoughton meeting, seems to favor holding of low grades to prevent glutting of the market and the possible lowering of prices for higher grades.

GO BEAVER FARMING IN NORTHERN BELT

Washington, D. C. — Experiments are being continued in Wisconsin, Michigan and Minnesota as to the practicability of farming beavers. Dr. E. W. Nelson, chief of the Biological Survey, Department of Agriculture, told the House Committee considering the Agriculture Appropriation bill.

"There is much cut-over land in these states that is of small value," Dr. Nelson said. "These lands grow up to aspens, birch, and various other deciduous trees, such as beavers like to feed on. The finest beaver in the United States, with the darkest fur, occupy that region. The idea has occurred to one of our men that this second growth might be cut and hauled to small lakes and fed to beavers in considerable numbers as a farming project. We are carrying on experiments along that line, and people up there are much interested."

Beaver skins bring from $15 to $20, according to the market. If it pays to feed cattle hay, might it not pay to raise high-grade beaver on brush, which grows in unlimited quantities over great areas? This is one of the various fur-farming problems."

Dr. Nelson also told the committee of experiments in fox-farming, muskrat-farming and other fur-farming activities. As a result of Dr. Nelson's arguments the bill as reported to the House carries $20,550 to be used for experiments in fur-farming and allied investigations.

GRANT STATE AID ON FAIR EXHIBITS

Approximately $300,000 has been allotted to the county fair associations for state aid on premiums paid on the 1923 exhibits.

Under the present state laws, a percent of the premiums paid at county and agricultural fairs is met by the state each year. The full consideration for the last year shows that the state aid amounted to $299,254.42 as compared to $287,018.04 in 1922.

The June county fair received $6,624, Janesville Park association, $4,629, Jefferson Co. Rock River association, $5,099, Rock County Agricultural society, $4,475, Walworth county, $5,271 and the Watertown Inter-county fair, $2,948.

MARY'S LITTLE LAMB HAS LOST HER TAIL

Madison—Why don't little lambs have tails?

They do when they are born, but because Badger farmers are good sheepmen, a sheep with a tail is becoming more and more an unusual sight. And the reason for it is that the large packing houses not only will pay nothing for the tail—they deduct from $2 upwards if the tail is present.

Frank Kleinhelm, veteran shepherd of the college of agriculture here, who has preached his gospel of docking lambs, is again reminding Badger farmers of the large losses which might result through their neglect in taking care of this phase of their sheep raising.

"In spite of the advice," says Klein-

PLAN TO PROTECT CHEESE INDUSTRY

Central Selling Association for Foreign Product Is Proposed.

Madison — Wisconsin's latest co-operative endeavor promises to protect one of the state's largest industries, the foreign cheese industry, according to Alvin C. Reis, assistant attorney general and counsel for the state marketing department. The new organization is the Wisconsin Foreign Cheese Producers Federation, tentative plans for which were adopted here last week. Mr. Reis outlines the new organization as follows:

The general plan is to federate co-operative foreign cheese factories into a central selling association. This federation means first, that local cheese associations will become members of the central organization, and secondly, that each local association will contract to sell the cheese output over a period of years through the central body.

Separate storage corporations will be organized, one in the Monroe district and one in the Watertown district, and these will serve the federation in grading and storing cheese. The Monroe district will cover Green, La Fayette, Dane and Iowa counties, the Watertown district Dodge, Washington and Columbia counties. In addition, local cheese factory associations will be organized. All three of the various types of organizations will be incorporated under the Wisconsin co-operative law.

The central sales organization will be incorporated with a capital stock of only $1000 at the start. After the close of the first year, the corporation will be capitalized at $21,000 or more, and soon by amounts of $20,000 or more during each year. Each storage corporation will be capitalized for approximately $75,000. Local associations will be incorporated according to their size and need.

Contracts will be made between the state federation and the storage corporations, between the state federation and the local and the storage concerns. In this way, the entire organization will be knitted together in a co-operative firm, the purpose of which will be to market and sell the foreign cheese production of the local associations.

Final ratification of the plan is expected to be made at the meetings to be held at Monroe, March 25, and Juneau, on March 26.

Don't let constipation make you an invalid—relieve it with Kellogg's Bran

Few people realize how dangerous is constipation until this dread disease tears down their health. Did you know that more than forty serious diseases can be traced to constipation?

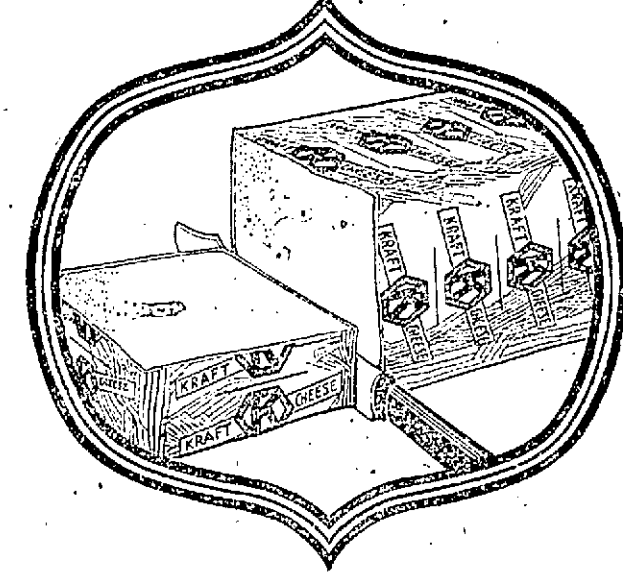

Keep your health, or restore it, with Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled. It brings relief in mild and chronic cases of constipation. It is effective because it is ALL bran. That is why it is recommended so highly by doctors. They know that only ALL bran can bring 100 per cent results. Part bran is, at best, only a halfway measure.

If eaten regularly, Kellogg's Bran will bring permanent relief—even in the most chronic case. It is guaranteed to do so. If it fails, your grocer will return your money.

Because it is ALL bran it sweeps, cleans and purifies the intestine. Like nature, it acts naturally. It makes the intestine function regularly.

Eat it every day—two tablespoons—in chronic cases, with every meal. Eat it with milk or cream. Sprinkle it over other cereals. Cook it with hot cereals. Enjoy it in these wonderful recipes given on every package.

The flavor of Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, is delicious. It is crisp, nut-like. Quite different from ordinary bran, which are so unpalatable. Kellogg's Bran is made in Battle Creek and served by the leading hotels and clubs everywhere. Sold by all grocers.

CARLE FIRE LOSS LESS THAN $15,000

Repairs and Redecorating
Work Near Completion—
College to Reopen.

Damage in the Carle building fire last Sunday morning will amount to considerably less than $15,000, according to preliminary figures from the insurance adjusters. A final report on the total damage is expected next week.

Carpenters, masons and decorators have been working in the building all week repairing the damage and completing the third floor. It is expected the Janesville Business College, located on the third floor, will be able to resume regular sessions Monday. Sections of flooring on the third story destroyed by fire and torn up with axes, have been replaced. Columns and walls through-out the building, badly blackened by smoke, are being washed and many of them repainted.

The clothing and shoe store of the Ames Hetherington company, located on the first floor, has been closed for five days for adjustment of the loss, most of which was due to water.

Insurance adjusters were seen Friday at the building at 55 south River street, owned by Mrs. J. L. Spellman, which was badly damaged by fire several hours before the Carle fire broke out. The loss on the building itself is placed at $1,000 but the damage to Gibson Brothers' print shop and the W. C. "Pill" cigar factory has not yet been announced. Both concerns have been tied up practically all week as a result of the fire.

Water main bonds to the amount of $15,000, issued by the city, were in the Gibson fire but only two or three of them were damaged by water. They were being prepared for printing and had not yet been completed.

When you think of insurance, think of C. P. Beckers. Advertisement.

To Elect Officers—Officers for the new semester will be elected by the French club at the high school Friday night.

WILLETTA SPURNS THEATRICAL OFFERS

Plans for Future Indefinite—Await Word from New Guardian.

Departure of 15-year old Willetta Hunsicker for her home at Chippewa Falls, still being Friday upon word from Miss Lillian Miller of that city in whose care the "maverick girl" will be placed. Supt. J. T. Hooper has not yet received a reply from the Christian Science practitioner. It is expected the girl will leave the institution as soon as word is received from Miss Miller.

Willetta, who has been the subject of much discussion during the past three years, was seen Friday at the institution where she has spent eight years, by a reporter for the Gazette.

Home With Miss Miller. Asked why she was leaving Janesville, the girl was at first hesitant, as though she did not know, but then said "I will go to the public school." She said she will complete her high school education in the Chippewa Falls high school and will live with Miss Miller.

"Oh, you aren't going to live with your grandmother then?" "No, she lives too far and Miss Miller lives near the school," Willetta said. The girl's parents are dead and her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Sarah Brewer, an aged woman, is her nearest relative. Miss Miller, who becomes her guardian in place of Mr. Hooper, will support the child and care for her, Willetta said Friday. "The girl said she had heard nothing of the prospect of going to Principia, exclusive Christian Science preparatory school at St. Louis, Mo."

Willetta said she would like to go to college but had not made any plans or given it much thought, intimating that there were quite a few things which might prevent this hope being realized. What she will make her life work she has no idea. "I have thought I would like to be a teacher but am not sure now," said

Willetta. "I'd like to do something to help others." "Would you like to be a Christian Science practitioner like Miss Miller?" "Yes, all of us would like to be practitioners," said the girl and explained that by this she meant Christian Scientists. Willetta, though a devout believer in Christian Science, is not a member of the church but expects to become one as soon as she shows sufficient knowledge to gain admittance.

Spurns Stage Offers. "Wouldn't you like to go on the stage, Willetta? You know you have been made offers which would bring large sums of money?" "No, I wouldn't like that and am not going on the stage," said the girl.

"Not even if you could make money to assure going to college?" she was asked.

"No," Willetta said emphatically. Willetta declared it is with regret that she leaves the school where

City Discards Plowing of Walks

Street Engineer Joseph Lustig has discarded the unsatisfactory method of using plows to clear sidewalks of snow, and instead the shoveling system has been adopted. Crews of shovellers were sent out Friday morning, following Thursday's storm, to clean walks in front of parks and other city property. Saturday they will be dispatched to jobs of shoveling in front of private property where the owners have failed to remove the snow. A special assessment charge of $1 per lot or more when the check-up will be made, Supt. R. O. Holt is in charge of the work.

MENDOTA MEDICAL STAFF INCREASED

Dr. Green, New Chief, Opens Administration With Prompt Reforms.

Mendota—Immediate increase in the medical staff at the Wisconsin state hospital for insane at Mendota, by the employment of two more physicians and eight graduate nurses, will be made by Dr. M. R. Green, newly appointed superintendent of the institution.

Both physicians and nurses must be experienced and highly capable for the work, according to Dr. Green.

Superintendent Green also announced that he will not tolerate abusive treatment of patients by attendants. A systematic check-up of the character of all attendants at the hospital is being made by Dr. Green for the purpose of eliminating any who are temperamentally incapable of efficient work, he said.

Dr. Green was placed in charge of the institution as successor to Dr. Frank L. Drake, who resigned following suspension by the board of control as a result of the death of Louden Heenan, Janesville patient. Mismanagement of the patient was charged. When Dr. Green was appointed he was given complete authority by the board of control to make any changes in the state hospital deemed necessary as a result of numerous charges of mistreatment of patients.

Special St. Patrick's day numbers. In addition to the usual concert program, will be presented by the Milton college glee club when it appears in the high school auditorium here March 17, under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. ## BLIVEN SENTENCE the trial court had no power to sentence him under section 4725. "If these rumors really are no one has ever determined, although newspaper men suspect that the rumors are originated by persons who are interested in playing the stock market.

"It appears that the plaintiff in error was charged with having committed a second offense, under the prohibition act, and instead of sentencing him under paragraph A of subsection 22 of section 165.01 (the state prohibition law) the court sentenced him under section 4725 statutes," says the attorney general in his brief.

"We contend that these two sections are in pari materia and must be construed together, and that when the complaint alleges that both offenses are under the prohibition act and that the last offense is therefore a second offense, under said statute, the penalty provided in paragraph A, subsection 22, of section 165.01 applies.

"Must Have Served Term—When a man commits an offense under the prohibition enforcement act for the first time, and has served a sentence in any state prison, state reformatory, house of correction or county jail for the violation of another statute, he may be sentenced to state prison under section 4725, if proper allegations have been made in the information. It may also be true that if a man commits a second offense under the prohibition act and has served a sentence in any of these institutions for a former conviction, for a violation of a statute other than the prohibition statute, and the said prior conviction is alleged in the information, then he may be sentenced under said section 4725.

"In the instant case it did not appear that the plaintiff in error had ever been convicted of another offense after the one in violation of the prohibition act. The allegation in the complaint was that he had committed a prior offense but that the prior offense was a violation of the prohibition act. Under these circumstances, the court had no power to sentence him under section 4725."

BLIVEN CASE ATTRACTS

GREAT INTEREST HERE

The Elias H. Bliven case has attracted considerable interest in Janesville the past eight months because of the importance of the principle involved—whether a man may be sentenced to the state prison for second offense under the prohibition law—also on account of the age of the man. Bliven is over 70 years old and lives at 11 North Washington street.

The Bliven home was raided twice by the police and each time liquor was confiscated. In the first case, Bliven was convicted but he was then released without being sentenced. When he was arrested a second time and convicted, Judge Maxfield sentenced him to 15 months in Wisconsin and he has been out on bail since, awaiting the supreme court's ruling.

Admitting there was some question as to whether Bliven could be sentenced under the general section 4725 Judge Maxfield was anxious that the case be submitted by Attorney T. S. Nolan to the supreme court for a decision so that he would know how future cases could be handled. Although it was brought out at the time that Bliven had never been sentenced the first time convicted, the case was submitted to the higher court on its merits and the principle involved in case he had been sentenced on Case No. 1.

True Story of Woodrow Wilson

and hope that the rumor will gain currency and that the stocks will be affected before the truth can be determined. Perhaps the author is suspicious but in his experience, in trailing presidents for a large news association nothing ever happened except on those few occasions when the newspaper men took a chance and left their assignment believing all was well. Not a newspaper man was with Mr. Wilson for instance when he motored from New York, New Jersey, to Princeton on the Saturday night before he was elected president of the United States. His automobile struck an obstacle and he was mortally injured. At another time when Mr. Wilson had become presidential nominee he objected to being followed to New York one afternoon by a squad of newspaper men. He said he did not mind one man being selected to act for the group. The author went to New York with Mr. Wilson who for some peculiar reason insisted upon taking street cars instead of the long route from the railroad station to the University club. As he alighted from a street car at Madison Avenue he caught his arm in time to prevent an accident. Needless to say I tried to convince Mr. Wilson that he would be in perfect safety if he permitted the newspaper correspondents to accompany him. His ideas on the subject however never changed.

But after all, the newspaper men did keep close tabs on Mr. Wilson's movements after he came to the White House or checked up with the secret service men whenever possible. When Mr. Wilson first came into national prominence in the campaign for the presidential nomination in the month preceding the Baltimore convention, his personal life was the subject of a penetrating investigation on the part of a chain of newspapers who were interested in advocating the candidacy of another man. The investigators naturally went to the little town of Princeton to search for something in Mr. Wilson's private life which would lend itself to scandalous exposure. They supposed that Mr. Wilson's enemies in Princeton would be the first to disclose facts which would be damaging to his political future but they were mistaken.

"One of these newspaper men came to me and offered a large sum of money," said a Princeton professor to the author in 1912. "If I would write an article even hinting that Mr. Wilson's personal conduct in Princeton had been improper, you know how bitterly I despise Woodrow Wilson but I told that newspaper representative I not only would not write anything for him but that there was nothing to write."

The pursuit of something that would be injurious did not end. Through some irresponsible source the newspaper representative learned that Mr. Wilson had at one time engaged in a correspondence with a woman of brilliant intellect. This was promptly hushed entirely out of its proportion and was whispered about the corridors of the Democratic National convention at Baltimore.

more. But it failed to hurt Mr. Wilson's candidacy.

Inasmuch as Baltimore is only a short distance from Washington and there were republicans in close touch with the gossip of the democratic convention, certain republicans who heard the rumor began talking about it and wondered if it were worth investigating further. The investigation was made and disclosed nothing improper and the matter was dropped.

One of the highest officials of the republican administration then in power subsequently told the author that in a casual conversation with Dean Andrew P. West, Mr. Wilson's arch-enemy in Princeton, the latter had said in 1912 that the gossip at Baltimore was absurd and was altogether news to the people who had known Mr. Wilson for twenty years or more in Princeton. When Mr. Wilson was elected president, he took Mrs. Wilson and his family to Bermuda for a rest. They occupied the cottage of the woman who had been mentioned as the recipient of attention from Mr. Wilson in earlier days. She was not in Bermuda at the time. When the president elect and Mrs. Wilson returned to New York they motored from the dock to the hotel where their boxes of Bermuda were making her home. Mrs. Wilson on at least two occasions later invited her to the White House for luncheon.

The correspondence which sprung up was typical of Mr. Wilson's general attitude toward old friends. He frequently discussed public matters in his letters and found a means of self expression in these communications. It was an inspiration to him to write. He made no special secret of his fondness for letter writing. These mental adventures took him as completely out of his day's burdens and responsibilities as a good detective story or a game of golf proven diverting to so many men nowadays.

From 1912 until the latter part of 1914 not a word was heard about this episode. But when announcement was made of Mrs. Wilson's prospective marriage to Mrs. Galt, there was a noticeable revival of the old gossip. At one time the renewal of this campaign was attributed to German sympathizers who were particularly bitter because of Mr. Wilson's alleged unpopularity. By the time the 1919 presidential contest was in full swing the same rumors which had been heard in 1912 had been so widely distributed that hardly a part of the United States was immune from the whispering campaign. The author in his canvass of political sentiment from coast to coast in 1916 visited many states and invariably was asked what effect the widespread discussion of Mr. Wilson's personal life was having in other states.

The democratic national campaign committee was fully aware of the effort to damage Mr. Wilson's candidacy but was powerless to meet the accusations by any direct means except to point to his exceptionally happy home life.

Nothing but the death of Mrs. Ellen Axson Wilson in August, 1914 broke the bond which had existed between these two people since they first became engaged in 1885. Mrs. Wilson gave her whole life and energy to her husband, standing devotedly at his side through the strain of his many battles at Princeton and through the trying days when his health broke for the pressure on him was so great that he twice suffered a serious breakdown before he came to the White House.

Just what was the true source of the effort to hurt Mr. Wilson by a campaign against his personal life will probably never be known. That it was malicious can not be doubted. For instance, about a year after the death of Mrs. Wilson, on the night before Thanksgiving day 1915 several of the more important newspaper bureaus in Washington were called on the telephone and mysteriously given a tip to the effect that important court proceedings had been filed involving Mr. Wilson. The newspaper men could not afford to ignore the information and yet they disbelieved it. Many of them spent the better part of a week investigating the story and found it baseless. Dissatisfied with this the rumor mongers tried another tack and insisted that prominent lawyers knew the circumstances. Every lawyer named was visited but none knew anything about it. The fact was, the story was made out of a whole cloth for some purpose the true nature of which probably is known only to those who originated it. Sneers from the senate cloakroom were carried to Mr. Wilson and helped to develop certain personal bitterness with men of Capitol Hill. Occasionally Mr. Wilson was told that one or two newspapers had planned to attack him in connection with the old gossip. Mr. Wilson was always ready to meet the slander squarely—he never flinched.

President Wilson was not the only occupant of the White House, however, who had to contend with a campaign of innuendo. All sorts of ugly rumors have from time to time been current respecting the character of our presidents either, relating to excessive drinking or indulgence of one kind or another but they can be traced almost always to the people who harbor a grudge—and there are many persons who fancy themselves aggrieved by the acts of public officials.

(Tomorrow's chapter will deal with Mr. Wilson's attitude toward the full sex—why he first opposed and then favored woman suffrage.)

The collapse of the franc has started a buying wave in Paris. People are hurrying into shops to trade paper money for merchandise.

BE PRETTY! TURN GRAY HAIR DARK

Try Grandmother's Old Favorite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome. Nowadays by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, at a small cost.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray is disappearing, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.
